The publication of the full text of the treaty signed at Huế between France and Annam places us in more complete possession of the intentions of France with regard to Annam and Tonkin than we have hitherto been.

Although France had declined a policy of annexation with regard to Tonkin it was believed that ultimately the country would become French territory. Such, in effect, though not in name, is to be the case.

The position of Tonkin under the new treaty will be pretty much the same as under the old one.

In the treaty signed last month it is provided:

Annam recognizes and accepts the protectorate of France with the consequences which according to European international law result from such a relationship. It is to be a French protectorate, and the relations of France with Annam shall be governed by the laws and customs which may be applicable to the relations of France with other countries.

In the former treaty France recognized the independence of Annam, which, by implication, may be taken to mean the recognition of the suzerainty of China over the country, but it is now expressly provided that China can communicate with the Annamese Government only through the intermediation of France, who is to control the relations between the two countries. It remains to be seen whether this article will be confirmed, or whether China will be allowed to retain a nominal suzerainty. The treaty has been sent to France for approval and it is possible alterations may be made in it. France is now, judging from late telegraphic advices, in the humour to concede something to the Annamese people of China in order to preserve peace, and China will probably be found willing to accept any terms so long as she can "keep face" in the eyes of her own subjects.

A nominal recognition of her suzerainty would give her the shadow while France might keep the substance, and with this arrangement, falling anything better, China would in all likelihood fall in, for in spite of all her bluster she is really as anxious for peace as France. It is questionable, however, whether France will concede even so much.

The allowance by France of the nominal recognition by Annam of China's suzerainty could not fail to weaken her prestige in Annam to some extent, and we take it that she would certainly object to the attendance of a representative of the Emperor of China at Huế to inaugurate the new King. Perhaps, however, she may wait even this objection. The interests of both countries would be so jeopardized by war that we have no doubt a peaceful solution of the difficulty will be arrived at by means of mutual concessions.

The French man-of-war Villars arrived at Shanghai on the 19th inst. from Hongkong.

The Agent informs us that the P. M. steamer City of Peking, with mails, &c., from San Francisco to the 4th inst., has arrived at Yokohama and sails for this port on the 26th inst.

The telegraph line from Tientsin to Tangchow has been opened to traffic. An Tanchow is only twelve miles distant from Peking, the Chinese telegraph line will soon be in telegraphic communication with the rest of the world.

The correspondent of the New York Times, who was ordered from Afghanistan to Tanchow, arrived there late, and is now in Siam. He proposes to go up country and visit all places of interest from the Malay peninsula to the Burmese border.

On Saturday at the Theatre Royal, City Hall, the first performance of Mrs. Bernard will be given. The play is Shirley, and will be played on the boards. The seats have all been secured, and to prevent confusion we recommend an early attendance.

It is with much regret (says the Japan Mail) that we announce the death of the infant Princess Masu, who expired at the Utagawa Palace at Saitama, a few miles from Tokyo, at 10 p.m. last evening, at the age of 10 months.

The Princess Masu was but 10 months old. Her illness was of a similar nature to that which carried off her elder sister, the Princess Kikuko. This is the fourth child His Majesty the Emperor has lost within the past few years.

Figure 1. Schematic representation of the experimental design. The subjects were divided into two groups: the control group (C) and the experimental group (E). The control group (C) was divided into two subgroups: the control group (C) and the control group (C). The experimental group (E) was divided into two subgroups: the experimental group (E) and the experimental group (E).

Crawford Eleven, and having recently forsaken Surrey, his "old love," he is now playing for Essex. He is a tall, powerful county-man who was born, and for which he has played with great success this season. Lord Harris is one of the representatives of aristocracy in the cricket field. He hails from Eton and Oxford, and now captains Kent. He is a splendid bat, and a sure and infallible bowler. He has been twice detailed as captain of the England team. Another aristocratic cricketer, of the Cambridge team, and now fills the post of captain for Yorkshire. Another Honourable is Ivor Bligh, a slashing bat, whom—in humour, and excellent field. He also won his spurs at Eton and Cambridge, and now does Victoria's service for Kent. Mr. T. W. Walker, another famous cricketing family, and once a popular wicket-keeper in the field, and makes excellent average scores for the Metropolitan County. As a mid-fielder in the field he has not his fellow. Another Middlesex first class, but rather unenterprising, is Mr. C. F. H. Ileslie. Rugby at Oxford none had their services. Another Middlesex cricketer worth mention is Frank Bunting. He has long been known as always "come off." He won several athletic ribbons of Harrow and Oxford. The name the three brothers Studd, whom all Middlesex utilises to her advantage. One formerly at Eton, and the Cambridge captain this year, pre-eminent a first-class batsman and one of the few really good bowlers; another, a first-class batsman and bowler; and the third, a first-class batsman last year, a central bat; and D. K., Hampshire; and probably, Cambridge captain next year, also a capital bat. We yet another Studd, A. H., in on the road to higher promotion, having served efficiently in the Eton Eleven this year. Thus crickets seem to flourish in families, as do the Pickering family of the past generation.

A TIGER STORY.
The Ootacamund correspondent of Madras Mail tells the following "story" of a tiger which was killed by Mr. Scott of place near the village of Mangaluni, in Mysore district; under rather peculiar circumstances. Mr. Scott, armed with a pica-ris, was in quest of wild fowl, and, in the heat of the chase, he assumed a conclusion that it was an elephant, and knew that there was one in the vicinity, accordingly sent away two natives who with him to fetch his heavy guns from the roars, and proceeded in the direction of the roars, with the intention of keeping the posed elephant in view until such time as he could be safely shot. He was waiting for the sight of a dried up water-hole, when, to his bound, he came right on a large tiger, who was stalking towards him, and from the roars had evidently proceeded. He so lightly armed, Mr. Scott backed away, with a view of beating a prudent retreat but "strips" immediately commenced hostilities by a swift advance and a "pica-ris" was sent flying through the air, so that it he could, in consideration the light pop-gun which he carried when "strips," showing all his teeth, grinning arrogantly, crouched to spring, distance of some twelve paces. Mr. Scott, no alternative but to fire. The result was a complete success, the tiger was springing, with the pop shot through the eye and brain. It speaks well for Mr. Scott's nerve that he should have used straight powder under such perilous circumstances. This selection of "strips" is a bit at showed great presence of mind to him from the little pica-ris in myriads of bullets without materially injuring him. Mr. Scott would have been at once killed.

in selecting such a method of vindication in conduct against the alleged insult. In fact, a challenger to a duel, although it may be considered in usual social life to a certain extent excusable, cannot be anything but justifiable when travelling out of that life. We doubt that he considers "as a certain tone of mind" the only thing that is "absolutely necessary," if the challenger is an individual be a German officer. When a German officer is challenged the question goes before the "court of honour" of his regiment, composed generally of the same member of each commissioned rank of the service. If it is decided that the challenger is entitled to fight he must accept the conditions. If the men were to quarrel, and on the hot blood of the momentary struggle struck the other "on the head with the element in his hand, it would be well for him if he escaped with his life. But if an officer, in cold blood, shoots another dead he is punished with a term of imprisonment for life. He has to go to the fortress for a year to some fortress, where he is subjected to no mild a form of punishment that he is scarcely inconvenient and then returns to his regiment with the slightest moral taint on his character. Nay, he has "stained his honour as a soldier," and a soldier's honour is his life. A German soldier could be so convinced of the truth of these statements, that he explores some of the barren and wooded plains round Berlin. Even without a gun he can scarcely fail to "light upon a crocodile" which marks the spot where a man with all his capabilities of usefulness to his friends and country has been killed. Few of these "crocodiles" are often mistaken for the ordinary crocodile, and if they are not, they will of course desire to vindicate that brightest of mankind's jewels, honour.
